bespoke piece that goes hand in hand with your personality. Let's see how best to get a wall clock that suits your home with the correct design by highlighting the categories available for you that fit your style.

Think About the Style of Your House

Moving on to the unique wall clock designs, it would be good to bring out the style of your house first. Is it modern, rustic, vintage, or eclectic? Each style has its range of designs that you may select from. Suppose your home has a modern touch, in this scenario, a modern quiet wall clock will be more appropriate such as those with rounded forms and smooth surfaces. However, in the case that you want to go antique, then I believe that you will love a decorative vintage clock with decorative details and classic numbers.

We at Cast & Bloom Metalworks offer a range of services and design exceptional elements in custom-made designs. Our range has something for everyone, from simple modern designs to elaborate vintage ones so that one will be able to find a wall clock that fits their home style perfectly.

Functionality Meets Artistry

Saving the best for last, how a wall clock looks is important, but this aspect should never be the only focus. After all, clocks were created with only one goal and that is timekeeping. When hunting for your ideal unique wall clock, there are factors concerning its usefulness that should be looked into. Are the hours marked in a number on the custom wall clock? Is the clock hands' face and hand colours bright enough to make it possible to view from afar?

At Cast & Bloom metalworks, each wall clock design is equally attributed to beauty and practicality. Our vintage decorative wall clocks also have dials that are easy to read thanks to their traditional design. An additional advantage of such best wall clock is that it is pleasant as well.

Choosing the Right Material

The material of your wall clock can have a huge impact not only on its appearance but even on how long it lasts. For example, the wall clock frame can be made of metal, wood or sometimes even glass each brings a different feeling into your home. Metal clock designs, like those offered by Cast & Bloom metalworks, are sturdy, contemporary, and embellished with surprising textures and finishes to achieve the desired adequate attention.

For a more rustic look, and to bring some warmth to the space, think of a wooden wall clock. Glass clocks to the contrary, can give a more sophisticated look that is more suited for modern or even minimalist styles. Whichever clock material you choose, ensure that it blends in well with the rest of the decor. There is more to the size than meets the eye

On the other hand, apart from materials, it is worth noting that the size of the wall clock should be of paramount consideration because it can be small or large. A big one-of-a-kind wall clock can be the centre of attraction in a room. It grabs the attention and makes the boldest statement in the spaces it's used in. In other instances, a clock that is smaller in size can be placed in smaller rooms such as in a reading nook or even in the bathroom.

To figure out the proportional size, take into account the free wall space on which you want to put a clock up. As a good basic principle, it can be said that it's best if the clock takes up roughly two-thirds of the wall. This way, it blends well with your room decor rather than only being an object that is hung on the wall.

Importance of Materials Used in Making Wall Clocks

The material of your wall clock is also focal as it can define the look and feel of the wall clock. There are the following lists of materials that are common and worth trying out.

Wood

The wooden vintage wall clock is one of the interior elements that would add cosiness and a touch of nature to your space. Furthermore, depending if you lean towards light or dark wooden colours, there are plenty of such fashionable ones.

Metal

An industrial or contemporary element can surely be added in your home with the usage of these types of clocks as they are made with the influence of metal. There are gorgeous metal wall clocks which Cast & Bloom Metalworks is surprised to offer, some of which you can even use as the centrepiece of any room.

Glass

Clocks made of glass can give space classiness and sophistication. These are ideal for contemporary houses and can suit diverse themes depending on the design.
